Most Important Flight
Governor Smith's Hat
Mongrel Success
The Permanent 18th

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

TO THIS COUNTRY the most important flight thus far made is Art Goebel's non-stop trip from Los Angeles on the Pacific to Long Island on the Atlantic. Goebel made the flight in less than 19 hours, reducing the record by eight hours.

With the Panama canal we no longer send fleets around South America. Battleships go from New York through the Panama canal to San Francisco, or vice versa, in less than two weeks.

The battleship is now a joke on which our country spends millions because those that make the battleships need the money.

The real defense and attack, as British experiments have proved, is the airship.

We know now that we could bring an air fleet from the Pacific to the Atlantic, or vice versa, for defense or attack within 24 hours.

When Governor Smith speaks to a radio audience of 70,000,000 at Albany, tomorrow night, the city will be ornamented with flags and thousands of Smith admirers will be decorated with derby hats.

Derby hat wearers will notice that it is not Governor Smith's "derby" that is responsible for his rise in the world.

That came from the mental machinery UNDER the hat. If it were as easy to imitate as to imitate the hat, the world would move rapidly.

The Governor Smith-Rev. Dr. Straton debate is off. Dr. Straton says he will not let Governor Smith reply to him in his Baptist Church, where the Straton charges were made. Governor Smith says, in that case, he won't notice Dr. Straton at all. The Governor's decision is wise. If you debate with a clergyman and win, YOU LOSE.

Prof. McKenzie of Washington University, St. Louis, says: "The human animal today is a mongrel. His is the hereditary product of a wide variety of racial types. The sex impulse is responsible."

Fondness for travel, war, and stealing of wives by young men opposed to inbreeding are also responsible.

Prof. McKenzie says truly: "Peoples as far apart as Orientals and Caucasians should not intermarry."

Otherwise, the more mixed the breed the better. Greece was the most mixed race in days of Pericles; Rome, the most mixed in Cæsar's time; France, most mixed in the reign of Louis the Fourteenth. England is the most mixed race today, with the exception of the United States. And Japan is the most thoroughly mixed race of Asia. The right kind of mongrel wins.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, head of Columbia College and a learned man, says "The Eighteenth Amendment must go."

Dr. Butler knows that 36 states would be required to eliminate or modify the Eighteenth Amendment. You couldn't get 36 or 26 states to vote for a change.

A President, opposed to prohibition, might, it is said, name supreme court justices to eliminate the Eighteenth Amendment along the lines of the Dred Scott decision.

They might declare the amendment subversive of the Constitution. They might, but they WOULDN'T.

WILLIAM F. WHITING OF HOLYOKE BECOMES COMMERCE SECRETARY

William F. Whiting, wealthy paper manufacturer of Holyoke and one of the "original Coolidge men," has been named by President Coolidge to succeed Herbert Hoover as Secretary of Commerce, it was learned in Boston today.

Whiting arrived in Superior, Wis., today, and was sworn in by the chief executive's office there. Mr. Whiting is 65 years old.

It was recalled that in the Republican National Convention at Chicago eight years ago, Whiting was the only Massachusetts man to vote for Coolidge for the presidential nomination during two entire ten ballots.

The paper manufacturer's vote went for Coolidge consistently, despite the plea of the late W. Murray Crane that Whiting support Harding for president on the last ballot.

DEATH TAKES 'POOCH' DONOVAN, EX-ATHLETE

Natick, Aug. 21.—"Pooch" Donovan, probably the best-known athletic trainer in America, and for the past 22 years head coach at Harvard, has passed on.

The famous trainer expired at his home here early today, succumbing to an attack of heart trouble which had been bothering him for months.

In the four corners of the earth—wherever a Harvard man can be found, today there will be tears shed at the news of the passing of "Pooch," for no member of the Harvard faculty, no coach, no trainer was more greatly beloved, more respected and honored than was this old-time trouper, circus man and trainer.

"Pooch," whose Christian name was William F. Donovan, was taken seriously ill while attending the Olympic games in Amsterdam. He was rushed home on the first available ship but his condition Please Turn to Page 6, Column 2.

NEW K. OF C. MEXICAN PROTEST

Cleveland, Aug. 21 (AP)—With more than 50,000 members of Catholic orders parading through downtown Cleveland, and celebration of a pontifical high mass, the Supreme Council of the Knights of Columbus reached the busiest and most eventful day of its convention today.

At the public hall, all the ceremony and pageantry of the Catholic church was used in celebrating the pontifical high mass, most impressive of any ever held here.

While plans were being worked out for today's gala program, national officers and directors held informal conferences yesterday to consider problems and policies to be decided at the present convention.

Two questions—the situation in Mexico and circulation of a spurious Knights of Columbus "oath"—are expected to cause the most discussion.

Martin H. Carmody, supreme knight, said "the expulsion of priests and nuns from Mexico constitutes a problem in which the Knights of Columbus feel very deeply." He announced the convention would reaffirm the stand taken at the 1927 convention in Philadelphia, protesting to the United States Government the expulsion of Catholics from Mexico.

"We have never urged intervention, but we have voiced our protest emphatically," he said.

Mr. Carmody also announced that Please Turn to Page 2, Column 8.

Impaled in 30-Foot Fall

Impaled on a picket fence after she fell three stories, Mrs. Amelia Desimone, 51, an invalid, of Rosemore st., Somerville, was probably fatally injured today.

A neighbor, Anthony Scollie, heard her moans and went to her aid, but was unable to lift her from the fence. He called policemen, who had to chop the picket away with an axe.

It is believed that Mrs. Desimone was unable to sleep and went to the window for fresh air, falling in some unexplained way to the fence, 30 feet below.

WARNER MOVES TO JAIL AUTO INSURANCE FRAUD LAWYERS AND DOCTORS

Jail sentences for doctors and lawyers conspiring to make false auto insurance claims loomed as a possibility today as Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner took up the criminal aspects of the compulsory liability insurance tangle.

That there is considerable evidence against a "ring" of such attorneys and doctors on file at the Registry of Motor Vehicles at Commonwealth Pier was admitted by Registrar George A. Parker and by Frank A. Goodwin, his predecessor, who gathered the facts before he left office.

Atty.-Gen. Warner stepped into the picture by conferring with Insurance Commissioner Wesley E. Monk, who already has the backing of Governor Fuller in urging disbarment proceedings against suspected lawyers.

Criminal prosecution, rather than disbarment, is what Atty. Gen. Warner contemplates.

"I am very much interested in any criminal evidence of fraud that the insurance commissioner has and there will be another conference between us to go over everything thoroughly," said Warner when his talk with Commissioner Monks ended.

"I am not interested in disbarment proceedings, because the Attorney-Please Turn to age 2, Column 4.

LADY MAYOR STATE HOUSE GUEST

appointed her daughter to that post, the duties of which are purely social.

Mother and daughter, wearing their chains of office, were joint guests of the City of Boston and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in their brief visit to the city, part of a short sojourn in this country, which ends Saturday.

The woman mayor, who serves without pay solely for the honor which goes with the office, told Mayor Nichols and Corporation Counsel Toland she, like many other municipal duties, including that of chief magistrate of Southampton. She said the latter position was won by virtue of an appointment from the home office, and that she has sat on murder cases as well as other proceedings.

Southampton, a city of 187,000, is a county borough or county in itself. Mayor Foster-Welch explained, adding that it has had mayors since the year 1237. In her office she said are two large parchments bearing the names of her predecessors, and she pointed with pride to the fact that her name, that of the first woman to ever hold the mayor's office, would complete the second parchment.

On November 3 next she vacates the office and becomes deputy mayor, it being the custom for a mayor to serve but one term. She said her chain of office was made in the 14th century, and is a beautiful example of old English gold work.

The visiting mayor told Mayor Nichols that the city of Southampton has built nearly 1000 homes for workingmen, now renting for $3 and $4 a week, which she is endeavoring to reduce to $2.50. The houses have six rooms and bath, but she declared it was difficult for workingmen to pay such "high prices."

Mayor Foster-Welch expressed surprise when informed that brick-layers here receive $12 to $14 a day. In England, she said, they receive from $3 to $4 per week.

Mrs. Foster-Welch read the names in the mayor's visiting book and then signed herself. Her daughter also signed.

The visitors, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Perry of New York, Mr. Perry being the representative of the United States line, visited the State House before going to City Hall.

There they were introduced to Lieut.-Gov. Allen in the absence of Governor Fuller.

The distinguished visitors arrived in Boston early today from New York, and after Mayor Foster-Welch had posed with her scarlet robe and chain of office, they were taken to the Copley-Plaza for a rest before visiting the State House and City Hall.

They were luncheon guests at the Ritz Carlton, then they visited Lexington and Concord. They will have dinner at the Copley-Plaza, and depart for Buffalo and Niagara Falls at 7 tonight. They will return to New York in time to sail for England Saturday night.

CLAIMS ARE PADDED, IS CHARGE

General, according to the present law, has no part in such action. The Bar Association proceeds and the court appoints someone to handle the prosecution.

"But I am anxious to know all about this insurance question with regard to its criminal aspects. I want to have a look at all evidence showing collusion between lawyers, doctors and clients which, it is claimed, has brought about these high insurance rates.

"There are, necessarily, a lot of things to consider before launching an investigation, the expense and scope, for example, and what I am doing is preliminary to a decision as to whether I shall go ahead.

"But I am very much interested in the whole situation and want to know the story connected with every phase of it."

Former Registrar Goodwin, who is preparing considerable material on the subject of auto insurance for his campaign for the Republican nomination for governor, would not go into the matter at length, but he called attention to one of his articles in the Boston Evening American in his safety series, in which he pointed out that he had gathered fraud evidence before leaving office.

From other sources it was learned that this evidence pointed largely to one group of attorneys and doctors working as a conspiracy "ring" to defraud insurance companies.

Goodwin went as far as to say he had written letters to suspected individuals and got them to his office for questioning. A stenographic record of their replies under this "cross-examination" is on file at the registry.

Capt. Parker said that he did not feel at liberty to make these records public at the present time, but was ready to turn them over to the Governor or attorney-general. He gave Goodwin full credit for gathering the material.

EVIDENCE OF CRIME

"There is sufficient evidence in these records to warrant criminal proceedings, according to Goodwin, who said that in some cases clients were not even aware their lawyers had made claims, while in other cases they had not given their attorneys authorization to sue.

"Why was not this accident reported to the registry?" was a question put to some of the lawyers who were grilled, and the reply in some instances was a frank admission that it was because there had really been no personal injuries.

Charges by Governor Fuller of bribery in connection with compulsory auto insurance stood out as one of the sensational developments in the situation.

Governor Fuller came out flat-footedly for a rigorous probe by State police into what he called bribery, chiseling and misrepresentation" in the working of the State's compulsory auto insurance law.

Collection of evidence, with the aim of prosecution of offenders by the attorney-general's office, was the governor's purpose.

GOVERNOR ACTS

Lawyers and doctors were scored by the governor for aiding and abetting auto insurance frauds.

The governor is backing up Commissioner Monk in getting the State Bar Association to act in the case of accused lawyers.

The State Board of Registration in Medicine has already begun an investigation of the conduct of accused doctors, the governor stated.

Another important development today was the conference of Commissioner Monk with Motor Vehicle Registrar George A. Parker, to discuss the latter's suggestion that the Commonwealth be prepared to handle compulsory insurance of autos.

In the matter of the proposed boost in rates, Commissioner Monk's attitude today was that the rates must go through as he originally announced it.

On the other hand, the governor made a statement from which an intimation was easy that he believed the commissioner could "scale his figures" so that a reduction in his rates would be possible.

12,000 Thrilled by Newspaper Film

Twelve thousand persons thrilled at what the service slogan of your newspaper and 27 other Hearst newspapers means when the 12,000 saw "The Making of a Newspaper" at Loew's State Theater.

A record gathering thronged the theater throughout the day and in the evening. With every seat in the house occupied, hundreds were forced to walk in the rear of the hall.

Rounds of applause broke out as some of the most thrilling scenes ever presented on a screen were unfolded. An ovation was given at the conclusion of the presentation.

The picture, itself, lived up to everything that was predicted for it.

The tale of the "game" needed no fiction surroundings to carry its appeal to the imagination, and there were none. It was shown in "The Making of a Newspaper," just as it really is, with its own real surroundings.

WOMEN GUESTS

There was no cub reporter who scooped the world, to marry the publisher's daughter. There were no reporters with notebooks. This was the real thing.

Three hundred women, who are to be the guests of the Boston Evening American, today, representing two leading organizations of 13 that were slated at getting the opportunity, will be thrilled. These women represent the Durant, Inc., and the Women's City Club of Boston. They will attend under the guidance of Florence B. Child, of the former, and Mrs. Kay Price, of the latter club.

Delegations of Camp Fire Girls, who attended under the leadership of Miss Lotta Clark, director in Greater Boston of that organization, and of Miss Margaret Thomas, were fascinated by the revelation of the "inside" of the newspaper business.

From the first "break" of a story until the paper is delivered by your favorite "newsie" at the door of your home the interesting processes are seen.

Every scene taken is actual, having been made in one of the plants from which the Hearst organization serves the largest newspaper reading public in the world.

Exciting events are actual happenings of the expense, effort and danger Hearst reporters and cameramen encounter to get the news speedily and accurately. Excitement, suspense, all the elements that make a great story are in the thrilling story that makes the background.

PRO, CON HEARD ON COLE'S USE OF 'DELEGATE'

Arguments for and against use of the term "Smith Delegate 1924-1928" by Gen. Charles H. Cole on his papers for Democratic nomination for governor were heard today by the State ballot law commission and taken under advisement.

Gen. Cole and his Democratic opponent, John L. Cummings, sat on the sidelines.

Attorney James H. McLaughlin, representing John P. Connolly of Woburn, who filed the protest, argued that a delegate to a national convention is not a public officeholder and under the law has no right to use the designation.

On the other hand Cole's attorney, ex-Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, contended the office of delegate, the machinery for whose election is set up by the State, comes entirely within the meaning of the section of the constitution allowing a candidate to set forth his present public office or any other he has held.

O'Connell argued it was generally known Cole was "the original Smith man in Massachusetts."

Malden's tax rate, announced today by Mayor John D. Devir, is $29.70, a reduction of $1.50 from last year and a total decrease of $5.30 since 1926.

With the announcement of the new rate, Mayor Devir called attention to public improvements and salary increases for city employes made since he assumed office four years ago.

"TELEPATHY" TELLS WIFE EXPLORER IS NOT DEAD

Peaulien France, Aug. 21 (AP)—Her confidence in what she terms her telepathic knowledge that her husband is alive is so great that Mrs P. H. Fawcett, wife of the lost British explorer, scoffs at reports of his death.

"My husband, Col. Fawcett, is not dead, despite publication of news to the contrary," she declared today in answer to reports that the explorer had been killed by hostile natives in Brazil. "For years I have followed his wanderings in South America by mental telepathy and I am sure that I would know immediately of his death."

FIVE FIRES THREATEN CALIFORNIA'S BIG TREES

San Francisco, Aug. 21 (AP)—Five forest fires were burning in Central California today while more than 1000 men fought to keep them from destroying valuable timber. They cast a pall of smoke over the San Joaquin Valley and one was only a West Ad.

visible in Fresno, 65 miles away.

The most costly thus far was in the Sequoia national forest just east of Grant National Park, where 10,000 acres, 3000 of which was timber land, was burned over. Weather conditions and rough country prevented the fighters from putting the blaze completely under control.

Don't say "It can't be done" until you've tried it.

'OUR GANG' FILM IS STARTED

Gang" resemblance contest was permitted to take part in the filming of the picture. They took part in all sorts of running races, tug of war, etc., which are called for in the scenario.

Perhaps the most interesting part of the fun came when groups were taken of the principals in the film, who were winners in the Boston Evening American's contest. The plot calls for a pie-eating contest and the "Gang" backs "Farina" against the world. In order to get her in condition for the big event they go through all sorts of laughable stunts.

There were many interesting incidents connected with the making of these scenes as, for instance, when the father of "Wheezer" (Henry A. Lurcott) stopped the show by appearing on the sidelines with a handful of candy. His young son saw him and started to cry for the candy, which caused much laughter. Director Kirby stopped the tears with a promise of all the candy "Wheezer" could eat after the scene was completed.

Free refreshments were served to all the children participating in the making of the picture. Here's what was given away to them:

"Hot dogs" by L. Rosoff, delicatessen proprietor at 13½ Bromfield st.

Ice Cream "Bunnies," by Turner Centre System.

Lollypops by Loft, Inc.

Bananas by Arancio Brothers (George A. and Frank V.).

"Baby Ruth," chocolate covered nut bar, by Curtis Candy Company, through Harry W. Moulton, Boston representative.

Cake by Drake Bakeries, Inc.

"Oh Boy!" gum, by the manufacturer.

Seven Chandler de luxe model automobiles conveyed the principals, movie director, camera men and others connected with the making of the picture to the park. They were loaned through courtesy of Jeffrey-Nichols Motor Company.

The winners in the contest conducted by the American, who are principals in the picture, are: John L. Tarlow of Gloucester as "Patsy." Paul R. Miller of Roxbury as "Freckles," Henry A. Larson of Brookline as "Wheezer," Dorothy DeWolfe of Dorchester as "Jean Darling," Beatrice Campbell of Manchester, N. H., as "Mary Ann," and Svreatha Jenkins of Roxbury as "Farina."

The understudies are Ralph Seals, Boston; Russell Haycox, Medford; Thornton Reagan, Waltham; Mc-L. Woodman, Wollaston; Gloria McCalfe, Brighton, and Editha Johnson, Everett.

The hours of making the picture are 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. Tomorrow will be the last day. Then the film will be sent to the studios to whip into shape for the showing at the Orpheum Theater.

Finds Husband Near Death

James Monahan, 37, of Mozart st., Jamaica Plain, was found unconscious in bed in his home today with the room filled with gas flowing from an open jet. His wife, who made the discovery, notified the police and Monahan was taken to City Hospital. He was found to be suffering from gas poisoning, but will recover.

Britain to Pray as Peace Pact Is Signed

London, Aug. 21 (AP)—The archbishops of Canterbury and York have decided to make the signing of the Kellogg anti-war treaty the occasion for prayer and thanksgiving in parish churches throughout the kingdom. Lord Cushendon, acting foreign secretary, has written the archbishop of Canterbury praising the call for prayer and saying: "Owing to the illness of Sir Austen Chamberlain, it will be my privilege to sign the treaty on behalf of His Majesty at Paris August 27.

"The treaty, as the American Secretary of State has wisely warned us, may not immediately banish all war, but it will be the most impressive declaration ever made by mankind to preserve peace."

HOOVER CUTS AL'S LEAD IN N. E.

G. O. P. CANDIDATE FORGES FORWARD IN BAY STATE

The lead established for the past ten days by Governor Smith over Herbert Hoover, in the New England States, is gradually being cut down by the Republican standard-bearer.

Returns tabulated from scattering cities and towns in all of New England show that the G. O. P. candidate has made a marked advance as a vote getter.

Governor Smith still controls the situation in New England in the grand totals of the straw vote which is being conducted by the Boston Evening American, in connection with the national poll taken by the Hearst newspapers.

Communities like Greenfield, Williamstown, North Brookfield, North Easton, Mansfield, Clinton, Adams and North Adams, have sent the Hoover figures skywards.

A huge block of votes tabulated from Providence, R. I., also showed that while Smith in the early stages of the straw vote had a walkaway, the situation today is somewhat different.

Although Smith still leads in Rhode Island, his figures show a decline here as well as in Massachusetts. Providence, like Boston helped Smith to build up a large lead. The smaller cities and towns have apparently reacted to the vote of their larger sisters.

There seems to be no question but that Boston is solid for Smith. Just what his figures will be next November, of course, is problematical.

Less than three days ago, Smith had a lead of more than two to one over Hoover, in Massachusetts, including Boston. Here is how a block of 241 votes tabulated in blocks of fifty ran, for instance, today:

Hoover 120, Smith 121. In 1924 Coolidge 177, Davis 45.

The women voted this year, Hoover 32, Smith 29. The same women in 1924, Coolidge 43, Davis 5. The changes were: Coolidge to Smith 61, of which 12 were women; and from Davis to Hoover 2, with one woman included. Twenty-four of the straw ballotters did not vote in 1924.

The above figures were taken at random through the State, including the Hub city. It is easy for you to analize them, if you keep in mind that Smith received the majority of his votes in Boston.

It shows at a glance that Smith is getting some of the Coolidge vote, running far ahead of the Davis vote; that Smith has something on Hoover in the switching of both men and women; but that at the same time Hoover shows the greater increase of strength.

DOCTOR LURED FROM HOME AND KILLED

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 21 (AP)—Lured from his home in Carrick, a suburb, ostensibly to minister to a sick woman, Dr. Harry R. Dapper, 39, prominent physician, was shot to death, according to the physician's father, by a man who escaped in the doctor's car.

Henry J. Dapper, 58, the father, who accompanied his son and the unidentified stranger on the trip, was slugged across the head with a blackjack. He is in a hospital where his son died early today from a gunshot wound.

Police were mystified by the killing.

NOTE—In the Wisconsin and Pennsylvania returns above, the smallness of the Davis vote was due to the heavy La Follette vote in those precincts four years ago. The La Follette vote in these districts appears to be going largely to Smith.

HOOVER IS AMID SCENES OF HIS CHILDHOOD

West Branch, Ia., Aug. 21 (AP)—Herbert Hoover was back today in this cross-roads village of his birth, cares of the presidential campaign forgotten as he renewed old friendships and visited scenes of his childhood.

Arriving early from his adopted home on the campus of Stanford University, Cal., the Republican candidate drove directly to the little frame house where he was born to have breakfast as the guest of Mrs. Jennie Scellars, who now owns the building.

With him were Mrs. Hoover and their two sons, Herbert, Jr., who came East for the occasion, and Allan, who accompanied his parents from California. The only other guest was Mrs. Molly Brown Carpenter, Hoover's first school teacher.

TYPICAL IOWA MENU.

Hoover's special train from Kansas City arrived five minutes ahead of schedule.

Color ran high in the cheeks of the white-haired, motherly woman who owns the homestead which Jesse Hoover built for his family half a century ago, as she shook hands with Mr. and Mrs. Hoover and their sons and invited them into the living room where a table had been set with simple white china.

The breakfast menu was typically Iowan, consisting of peaches and cream, honey, ham and eggs, fried potatoes, rolls and coffee. Mrs. Scellars had prepared the meal herself and had dug the potatoes in her garden.

As the visitors ate, the crowd which had followed the automobile procession from the station milled around outside, overrunning the lawn and virtually destroying the beautiful flower beds. Still others gathered around the front porch. This porch had been leased to a concessionaire who did a thriving business selling pictures of Hoover and the birthplace.

THE HOOVERS MEET.

Before the call to breakfast, the Republican standard bearer visited the kitchen wherein e once helped his widowed mother and then stepped out on the back porch which overlooks a small garden. Some distance away Mr. Hoover saw the well from which as a boy he drew water.

The midday meal was eaten at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. O. Yoder. Mrs. Yoder, wife of the postmaster, is Hoover's second cousin.

Several relatives were guests at luncheon. A family reunion was set for late in the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Branson. Mrs. Branson also is Hoover's second cousin.

FEVER STRIKES DOWN 190,000 IN ATHENS

Athens, Aug. 21 (AP)—An epidemic of dengue fever has steadily been gaining ground on Athens in recent weeks and the number of cases is now estimated at more than 190,000.

The fever is not often fatal and of the ten cases where deaths occurred, it is stated that the mortality was chiefly due to the complication of heart disease.

All the members of many families have been sick at one time or another from the fever and public services have been partly disorganized. The hygiene ministry has organized a special service to fight the fever and it was stated today that it was not true, as had been reported, that the medical service has broken down.

Efforts have been made to prevent the spread of the disease by draining marshes or covering them with petroleum in order to destroy fever-bearing mosquitoes.

The population of Athens is approximately 400,000. Advices received by the Near East Relief in New York yesterday estimated that there were about 190,000 cases of dengue fever in Athens or approximately half the population.

Missing Dog Found Two Days After It Falls Into Well

The doggie of Frank S. Jarvis of Mt. Vernon st., Reading, missing for two days, wasn't dead at all. It had two well days.

Today the missing dog was found in an old well 300 feet from the Jarvis home, and when taken out seemed little the worse for its experience.

The pup disappeared Sunday and search failed to reveal any trace of the animal.

Then Jarvis, acting on a "hunch," investigated the well. He found the dog on a projecting rock far below. It had kept comfortably cool during all its absence.

TRAINING SHIP ALBATROSS 'STRANDED'

Like the bird of the name, hoodoo of Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner," the ill-starred training ship Albatross that at Hamburg, victim of a new kind of marine stranding, while the cables today were carrying the "cracks" from Boston to get the crack off the cracks.

In all the exiled "cracks" total $4600 good American dollars, sent because a sort of $68 had come explaining the "stranding" of the Albatross.

The craft is financially stranded, with the boys aboard, most of them of Massachusetts families. Parents of some of the boys have referred to the Albatross as a "hoodoo ship," because of the numerous troubles that have pursued its career.

BOYS NEED THE MONEY.

Cablegrams from several of the boys, asking for funds for the journey home, preceded action by the American Nautical Schools, Inc., which fostered the training ship abroad, the corporation meeting to discuss the emergency. It was voted to raise the $4600 at once.

Later, the corporation announced the craft might be back in Boston harbor by Labor Day. It was said the students would be brought home without charge.

When the Albatross started from Boston hundreds of friends and relatives of the boys were on hand. There was cheering and waving of flags. There had been a Friday, today, due to objections made by the port officials.

DELAYED AT CORK.

A result of the delay was that the Albatross made Sydney, Nova Scotia its first port of call instead of Cork, Ireland. On the second leg, from Sydney to Cork, many of the boys were seasick and discouraged, and trouble developed among them and one of the officers of the ship. The Albatross hove to for four days on its run to Ireland, and instead of reaching at Cork a day, remained three five days.

At Cork, another misfortune overtook the vessel when, in dropping the anchor a hole was made in the hull. That required immediate repair. Then came the "stranding" in German waters.

filled to impress. The greatest exercise from the Harvard medical school fulfilled as valiantly to save the life of the old coach, as Donovan himself had battled for the next twenty-four years to turn out athletes that would carry the crimson of Harvard to victory on field and track.

Donovan sense of times, was his right but the men of medicine failed and when the crimson colors were at half mast and sorrow is in the heart of every son of John Harvard, the old coach hopes and wishes that Harvard's athletes have written in the last few years are the story of Donovan's life.

Pat delicately balanced toe of dreadnaught—the sterling effort of the Mannix—the stumbling legs of Eddie Casey and Bill Murray—all these were a part the unforgettable "Pooch" Donovan. When the million the ranks of the Harvard Stadium or the Yale Bowl cheered Harvard's feats to victory on the gridiron, unanimously they were keeping "Pooch" Donovan, for it was "Pooch" was sent to it that every man who wore the crimson was in the razor edge of condition at the moment the play started.

"Pooch" was born in Natick. From his early boyhood he was an athlete. His brother, "Pooch" was also a famous runner and it was his brother that gave "Pooch" the nickname that stuck to him through life.

The brother was often complimented for his fine ability in a runner, but he was loathe to accept all the praise. He was unable to properly pronounce the word "pooch," but when twitted for his ability, would remember respond, "Ya ought to see my brother, he's a pooch."

Donovan, for a number of years, as a young man travelled with circuses and big outdoor spectacles. His act, invariable, was to race against a horse and it was so arranged that he always won.

In 1893 he quit the circus life to become trainer for the Worcester A. C. Then, for thirteen years he was trainer at the Worcester Academy. His fame became such that in 1896 Harvard College secured his services as head trainer, which position he held until his death.

Donovan is survived by a son, Dr. Thomas Donovan, who did recently, left a personal estate valued at $267,599 and real estate valued at $17,250, according to the inventory filed today in Norfolk Probate court by Albert E. Lenz, Arthur E. Miller and James A. Hurley.

SHARON CAMP CLOSED BY DIPHTHERIA CASES

Wonderland, the fresh air camp of the Salvation Army at Sharon and the largest camp of its kind in the world, is today a deserted village.

Where, for weeks past the voices of hundreds of happy children were heard as they romped and played all is still today, for the camp has been suddenly closed as a result of an epidemic of diphtheria. One child is dead and five others are suffering from the disease, but State authorities, who made a rigid investigation, declared that the 400 other children were uninfected and could go to their homes.

EGGS 5 YEARS OLD WORTH $25 A DOZEN IN SUIT

Los Angeles, Aug. 21 (AP)—It was a lucky thing for the trucking company that the Chinese eggs it was hauling for Fu Wai Sin were only five years old. As that was the case, they were worth only $25 a dozen. Had they been seven years old they would have been worth $50 a dozen. Such were the representations made by the Chinese merchant in Municipal Court when he asked and received a judgment of $720 against the trucking company for breakage of the eggs in a crash.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

VANDERBILT IN HUB, IGNORES HIS FAMILY

mansion in Newport where the family is staying, but that he would ignore the invitation. He also discussed his failure as a newspaper publisher.

"You know," he said companionably, "I settled with my stockholders in June. I established a trust fund of $2,500,000—yes, quite a lot of money—so that the men and women who invested in my newspapers will get back 100 cents on the dollar. I did that with my own money—money that I had inherited through several wills. My family didn't give me a cent of it.

"As soon as they learned that I thus had got my financial troubles settled, they suddenly became very friendly with me again. They have invited me and Mrs. Vanderbilt down to Newport—my sister, Grace is there now, the one who eloped with Henry Davis last year—and we'd sort of like to go.

"You know, I haven't seen my father and mother for six years.

Million a Month Rum Trade Near Detroit

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 21 (AP)—The liquor trade of exporters operating along the Detroit river front here is estimated by government authorities at $1,000,000 a month.

Their estimates are based on tariff money introduced at the trial of the Erie Transport Company, charged with illegal storage of liquor, which allowed that company alone had been doing a business of $100,000 a month. The Erie company is only one of 19 operating docks along the river front.

The Erie company dock was one of those seized by provincial police on the complaint of Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Ontario liquor control board, that heavy accumulations of liquor stocks beyond the needs of the province were contrary to law. Much of the liquor sold on the docks found its way into bootleg channels for export to the United States, he charged.

Windsor is just across the river from Detroit.

Smith Frowns Upon Brown Derby With "Pink Trimming"

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 21 (AP)—A brown derby with pink and white trimmings is not Governor Smith's idea of a real Democratic symbol.

A cake that a confectioner concocted for the 21st birthday of the Governor's son Arthur, was in the form of a derby hat, reminiscent of the Democratic presidential nominee's headgear. But it was iced with white sugar and bedecked with a band of delicate pink. The Smith family returned it to the confectioner.

When it was redelivered to the executive mansion the shape was the same but a rich chocolate coating made the semblance more acceptable.

But they didn't come through when I was in hot water when my papers failed, and well—you see how it is."

Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt are on their second honeymoon—the second for both of them. The first Mrs. Vanderbilt divorced him a year ago, and his second wife was Mrs. Waldo Weir Logan.

They have toured Canada from Ontario to the Maritime provinces and are now bound for New York. He is writing as he goes, articles for the Saturday Evening Post and the Red Book, and finds that he can support himself comfortably without family subsidies.

LYNN COPS ROUT 'BATHING ELFS'

The "cute" age in nudity is strained when it goes above twelve, Lynn police decided today—and so the cunning little elfs of nineteen and twenty years of age who have been disporting without clothing in Flax Pond were scattered and their "swimming hole" dissanulled.

Where were nearly two-score girlies in the Flax Pond flock when police were complained to today by cottagers. Many were mere youngsters, but there were a number of most of voting age.

When Sergt. John Healy and a squad of police arrived at the pond, there was a wild scramble for clothes—and then the swimmers scuttled into the woods, all escaping.

Police took down the springboard cut down a catapult-swing and sawed off a long tree limb extending out over the water. Then an officer was left on the spot.

MAINE FISHERMEN IN MINE PRACTICE PROTEST

Portland, Me., Aug. 21—Fishing interests today appealed to army officials at Ft. Williams to postpone mine practice scheduled for tomorrow. Heavy schools of sardines have been sighted along the coast and the explosion of mines would kill the fish or drive them away, the local army chiefs were told.

ELECTION WONT HURT BUSINESS SAYS WILLYS

New York, Aug. 21—The presidential election, the peace plan of secretary Kellogg and the American built motor car are the three principal topics of discussion in Europe today, declared John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland Co. who arrived home on the Leviathan.

The auto magnate reported the Willys Overland Crossley Co. at Stockport, England, busy on the largest schedule of deliveries in its history. The assembly plant opened at Berlin a year ago is running at maximum capacity, he said.

Willys declined to comment upon the political activities of Raskob or the candidacies of Henry Ford.

"Politics should not greatly influence general business this year," he said, "and there is no reason why the country should expect either upward or downward trends in business because of the presidential election. This country is sufficiently well-grounded in prosperity at present to image a continuance of the good times which we have enjoyed for the last several years."

FOG OVER CANAL DELAYS BOAT

Heavy watermists in the Cape Cod Canal early today forced the New York-Boston boat to anchor for three hours.

As a result, the boat was late in reaching her Boston dock.

Most of the night passengers were unaware of the enforced halt and did not learn of it until they awoke with the sun. The same sun burned away the thick, swirling vapors that had reduced visibility practically to zero.

BOSTON SAILORS TELL HOW 14 DIED IN SEA

Distressed, tattered and broken, the Boston freighter S. S. McKenney, bound for this city from Seattle, staggered into port at Panama today with the story of a fierce and tragic battle with a Pacific typhoon during which 14 members of her crew were lost overboard.

The docking of the McKenney concolorated the fears of her Boston owners, Mystic Line steamship Company, which had some words of the tragedy from a liner signalled by the ill-fated craft. Many local men, including Roy McDonald and his son, Alton, both of Medford, are believed to be numbered among the dead.

The McKenney's log placed the disaster near midnight of August 8, when her steering control was washed away in the hurricane. The engines were cut down to half speed and an unsuccessful attempt to bring her bow to windward was made.

WRECKED BY THE SEA.

As she lay swung about in the trough of the sea a great wave swept her. 150,000,000 feet of lumber on her decks, going by the boards and taking with it the forecmast. All boats were washed away, the chartroom was flooded and doors to the saloon were smashed in.

The sea lifted a battened-down hatch cover from place, and the crew of the vessel from swamping 14 of her open pushed to replace it. As they fought to dog it down, a second wave breached the ship and every one of the 14 was washed over the side.

All through the night and the next day, the McKenney fought the ship and when the storm finally abated and the steering gear had been repaired, she was about for the spot at which disaster had overtaken her.

NONE ON LUMBER.

She reached it exactly and as far as the eye could see, in any direction, the lumber that had been her cargo floated. But no man clung to it. For half a day the freighter cruised about while all hands kept watch for life among the floating logs.

At dark, after recovering some of the lumber, the ship put about and resumed her course. Whether she will go back to Panama for repairs or proceed to Boston with what remains of her cargo has not been announced.

Lowell's Callahan 'Kids' Found After 3 Days Wandering

Lowell, Aug. 21—The "Callahan kids," missing for six days earlier this month, today completed another wandering spell of three days.

This time Etta, 11, and Fred, 9, had their little brother, Walter, 2, with them. They were found strolling along Riverneck rd., North Chelmsford, and Policewoman Mathilda Costello brought them home.

The three disappeared Saturday and police sought them far and wide. Their departure came only a few days after the end of the six-day jaunt of Etta and Fred, who were hunted all over the state before being found in a park here.

Al's Dress Rehearsal Works His Smile Overtime

Albany N. Y., Aug. 21 (INS)—Governor Smith, his face wreathed in smiles, went through a dress rehearsal shortly after noon today in preparation for the notification ceremonies tomorrow night when he will formally accept the Democratic presidential nomination.

Accompanied by two score newspapermen, the Governor was whisked out of his private office in the executive chamber down the side steps of the capitol and, mounting the temporary rostrum, gave the amplifiers a thorough test.

MISS EFFICIENCY IN POLITICS PLEASES HULL

The efficiency of women in politics "who know what they want and how after it," was extolled by Speaker John C. Hull, candidate for the G. O. P. nomination for lieutenant governor, today at a luncheon given by the Women's Republican Club.

After pointing out their opportunity and responsibility in molding public opinion, in bringing issues and candidates into the open, in coaxing out the vote and in cleaning up the politics of the nation, Hull declared that upon the women rested the obligation to elect the best available candidates to state and national offices.

Cox-Bancroft and Morss-Wentworth Nuptials Numbered Among Important Hub Ceremonials

NOT SO VERY LONG AGO IT APPEARED THAT THE DEBUTANTE would absorb every atom of limelight flickering this season over the arena wherein the fashionable games proceed in their established ways. But however numerous the buds, and certainly Boston has a tremendous blooming this season, it is the bride-elect and her bridal plans which corral the attention of an army of caterers, florists, choristers, modistes and social secretaries, to say nothing of parents and kith and kin more remotely connected. The bride, bless her fluttering heart, runs away with the picture and little Miss Debutante for a while plays second fiddle.

MISS JESSIE BANCROFT, DAUGHTER OF THE HUGH BANCROFTS, has a frivolous sendoff along the bridal path that for gayety and brilliance is seldom equalled. Parties for her and her intended, William Cox, crowd fast one after the other, in a continuous whirl that ends only when she steps from her motor to sway slowly up the aisle in bridal finery. On the wedding eve, festivities take their way at Deer Hill, the spacious seashore place of the Bancrofts at Cohasset. A large dinner dance is the occasion.

OTHERWISE THE ROSE-STREWN PATH LEADING EVENTUALLY afterward takes a merry Bancroft-Cox wedding party down to the Essex County Club, there to dine and dance as guests of Miss Betty Moulton and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Moulton, on the evening of September 5. The evening before Miss Rachel Jackson gives a bride's dinner, at the James Jackson country home in lovely Westwood, and the evening after the festal way is to the dinner for which Miss Lorraine Liggett is hostess.

ST. STEPHEN'S CARILLONS COULD PEAL FOR NO MORE significant ceremonial occasion than Miss Bancroft's wedding day; since it was Miss Bancroft's mater who presented this wonderful gift to the Cohasset church where wedding vows are to be said. Motors in endless procession will draw up before its portals on the noon of September 8, and more motors still will flash up the hill to the Bancroft pines, where beautiful garden vistas and spacious lawns await the guests. There is a fountain garden, terraced and sheltered behind ancient brick walls, a gem of artistic planning for the guests' very special delight.

MISS ANNE WENTWORTH IS BACK HOME WITH THE MOST becoming coat of tan any girl ever acquired beneath clear western sun. Before Sept. 29 it will have mellowed beautifully to enhance wedding furbelows as she and Everett Morss, Jr., stand before the altar of Milton's old colonial church where many daughters of the elect have said their fateful vows. Just now she and her mother, Mrs. Stratford Wentworth, are whirling through the preliminaries so endless, apparently, and so necessary when prominent daughters of fashion wed with important scions of plutocracy.

MISS WENTWORTH WILL BE A HANDSOME BRIDE. POISE and patrician good looks were allotted her, when good fairies gathered about her cradle. And she has vivacity and personality, the sort not to be submerged by billowing tulle and priceless laces, as are some brides, most lamentably. Her bridal entourage is likewise abundantly endowed with good looks. And better still, with individuality and that intangible thing called charm, to draw the optics pleasurably as they march two and two up the aisle before the bride.

THERE IS MISS MARGARET WENTWORTH, A FRESH-CHEEKED beauty to be the maid of honor to her sister. And there is Miss Juliet Greene, whom everyone admires enormously and who is just back from several months of travels abroad. Miss Sally Porter, Miss Mary Pickering Rush and Miss Constance Wentworth make up the quintet. Miss Constance is a younger Wentworth than the bride-elect. Their mater was a LeMoyne, and there is a family tree all aflutter with leaves imposingly inscribed.

VERY SOON NOW WEDDING CARDS ASKING "THE HONOR OF" a certain social presence will go out, inviting guests to a reception at the Milton Club after ceremonial promises are given and received. Of course the reception will have al fresco touches, if September breezes and September sun are as kind to charming brides as they well should be. Meanwhile, the bride-elect herself is frivoling a bit away from the hectic whirl of wedding preparations, as Mrs. Everett Morss entertains for her at the North Shore.

SHY HERO WON'T BE BOTHERED

Morris Ettenberg, 14, who saved a girl from drowning at Winthrop, then told a hero-worshipping crowd "not to bother him." He lives in Cambridge, and is an expert swimmer. When he saw Bertha Abrahamson, 16, of 21 Nevada st., in the water, he swam 200 feet and rescued her.

Bertha Abrahamson, who was almost dead when Morris got her to land. Four doctors revived her. Then her rescuer refused to let her make a fuss over him!

$60,000 WON BY "POKER FACE," "MME. K."

Le Touquet, France, Aug. 21—A wealthy American "mystery" woman, known as "Mme. K," who has iron-gray hair and a "poker" face, is providing fashionable visitors here with a new sensation. She plays at the high stakes baccarat table in the Casino from 10:30 in the evening until 4:30 the next morning.

This she has done without a break every night for four weeks, during which time she has won over $60,000.

Her money is brought to her as she takes her seat every night—she always occupies the same place at the table where the minimum stake is $400—by an attendant at the Casino on an immense tray heaped up with 10,000-franc "chips."

She never leaves her seat throughout the night and never misses taking the bank.

Six or seven times in the course of the night champagne is brought and placed at her elbow.

She is always unaccompanied and invariably wears a long necklace of emeralds, worth, it is said, a fabulous sum.

Whether she wins or loses she never alters her expression of lightly amused boredom, and she smokes her cigarettes continuously through a long holder.

"Stitches in Time" Make $96,000,000 for Them

London, Aug. 21 (AP)—William Hodges Coats, chairman of J. & P. Coats, thread manufacturers, died today. He was the only surviving son of the late Archibald Coats, first chairman of the company.

William Hodges Coats was reckoned a millionaire in English pounds. He was the 12th man of that wealth in the family since the business was started in a small way 101 years ago.

Thus far the estate taxes on various members of the family have netted the government nearly £5,000,000, or approximately £25,000,000. Among estates already settled are those of Lord Glenlear, who left £4,647,263; Peter Coats, £2,526,270; J. Coats, Jr., £1,961,145; Sir James Coats, £1,773,870 Archibald Coats, £1,499,125; Daniel Coats, £1,734,982; Sir Thomas Glen Coats, £1,474,906, and W. A. Coats, £3,936,085.

LIVE WIRE KILLS COLLEGE BOY

Worcester, Aug. 21—Gordon Allen, 21, son of City Auditor Henry A. Allen, was instantly killed at Quinsigamond today when his body came in contact with high tension wires of the Worcester Street Railway Company.

Allen, who was a junior at Clark University, this city, was working with city engineers, surveying a section of Quinsigamond.

He climbed to the top of the steel tower which supported the wires and a moment later his body toppled to the ground near his fellow-workers. More than 12,000 volts passed through his body.

HUB-N. Y. TRAIN DETOURS OWING TO FREIGHT WRECK

Hartford, Ct., May 21 (AP)—Three cars of a north-bound freight train on the New Haven road from New Haven to Springfield were derailed north of Berlin Junction early today, due, it is thought, to a faulty manipulation of switches at Berlin. No one was injured, but both tracks were blocked more than an hour. North-bound trains for Hartford and Springfield were rerouted through New Britain and south-bound trains for New York went over the Waterbury route. No. 69 from Boston went to New York through Waterbury, as did the Washingtonian from Montreal.

HUNT FOR HASSELL FAILS

Washington, Aug. 21 (INS)—H. Bert Hensel and Parker Cramer landed in the water off the Labrador coast the chances of rescuing them are remote, according to a message today from the Coast Guard cutter Marion, which is directing a search for the missing fliers in the vicinity of Davis straits.

The message said:

"Taking stations on line of Hassell's flight, but no signs of him. Will make search, but if he is down on the water chances of rescue are infinitesimally small. Hard northwest storm Sunday. If he landed on water it would have been impossible to last even a few hours."

Commander E. [illegible]th of the Marion reported today that the weather is becoming stormy, which will make more difficult the search for the Greater Rockford.

"Except for the Marion, there are no other ships in the area."

TO MARCH ON STATE HOUSE

Aroused by alleged brutality to three colored men by police officers, colored citizens of Boston announced today they would march in a body to the State House unless Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson gives them satisfaction immediately.

The announcement was made by T. A. Tichener, publisher of the Boston chronicle and prodet of the Negroes' Defense Association, who said that while complaint was made to Wilson on Aug. 3, no action has yet been taken.

Tichener described the attacks as among the most brutal in the history of the Boston police department, the victim in one instance having lost his left eye with the possibility that he may also lose the other.

The gathering that visited Wilson on Aug. 3 was led by Tichener and included Dr. Cassius A. Watt pastor of Ebenezer Baptist Church; Dr. William Worthy, chaplain; Rev. H. D. Greene, pastor of Bolivar Seventh Day Advent Church, and Jesse Goode, treasurer of the South End Co-operative Bank.

Fiction-Like, Fact Story of a "Regular Fellow"

CHAPTER 2

OF all the six children of Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary of England, Edward, Prince of Wales, was by far the most troublesome as a small baby. His lungs were both "large and vigorous"—as his grandfather, the late King Edward VII, used often to remark.

The birth of a son to Their Royal Highness, the Duke and Duchess of York had ceased to be a source of jubilation to the general public when the Royal Family found itself faced with a new and difficult problem.

Three weeks after the birth of the prince, Queen Victoria summoned the members of the Royal Family to a consultation to discuss the question of naming the little prince.

Naturally, there must be some attempt made, for political and national reasons, to endow the child with Christian names which might satisfy the great numbers of subjects over which Prince Edward would some day rule. Then, too, there must be taken into consideration the differing choices of the immediate Royal Family circle. Already Queen Victoria desired that the infant should bear the name Albert. Her Majesty decided this after the birth of each of her grandsons (with one or two notable exceptions).

Others of the Royal Family did not agree with the wisdom of commemorating the death of the noble Prince Consort in this patronymic manner. The prince's grandfather was also anxious to hand down to his grandson some of the popularity with which he had endowed the name of Edward; while his mother wished that George, his father's name, should be passed on to the eldest son. St. George was the Patron Saint of England. The Princess of Wales (later, Queen Alexandra) also had another favorite name—Christian—her own father's name.

Ah so the future heir to the throne was, three days later, baptised as Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David.

The laudable addition of the three national names, representing Scotland, Ireland and Wales, satisfied everyone.

THE CHRISTENING

At the special request of Queen Victoria the christening of the young Prince was to be entirely free from the pomp and splendor which is usually demanded by tradition in Royal ceremonies.

It was to be a quiet family affair and it had been arranged that the Queen, together with the Prince and Princess of Wales and the Duke and Duchess of York, should act as godfathers and godmothers.

Now it had to be decided which of his various names should be selected for private use by his family. Already the official designation was Prince Albert Edward, and later Edward only the Prince now signs himself just "Edward P." but for family purposes these two names recalled and memories, and it was his mother who chose David as the pet name for her first born son, and by this ancient Welsh name he has always been known to the family and intimate friends and is still called today.

Some few days after the christening ceremony, the Duke and Duchess of York, with the Royal baby, moved from White Lodge to York House, staying there until August 4th, 1874, when the Duchess of York accompanied by her mother and Lady Greville, left for St. Moritz, Switzerland, for a month's holiday of recuperation.

During his mother's absence, the Royal Prince was taken back to White Lodge under the care of his nurse.

At the end of August the Duke journeyed from Sandringham, the Royal Estate in Norfolk to York House, London, to be ready to meet the Duchess, who was expected to arrive from the continent at any

Washington, Aug. 21 (INS)—If Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer landed in the water off the Labrador coast the chances of rescuing them are remote, according to a message today from the Coast Guard cutter Marion, which is directing a search for the missing fliers in the vicinity of Davis straits.

The message said:

"Talking stations on line of Hassell's flight, but no signs of him. Will make search, but if he is down on the water chances of rescue are infinitesimally small. Hard northwest storm Sunday. If he landed on water it would have been impossible to last even a few hours."

Commander E. [illegible] of the Marion reported today that the weather is becoming stormy, which will make more difficult the search for the Greater Rockford.

Except for the Marion, there are no other ships in the area.

TO MARCH ON STATE HOUSE

Aroused by alleged brutality to three colored men by police officers, colored citizens of Boston announced today they would march in a body to the State House unless Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson gives them satisfaction immediately.

The announcement was made by T. A. Tichener, publisher of the Boston Chronicle and president of the Negroes' Defense Association, who said that while complaint was made to Wilson on Aug. 2, no action has yet been taken.

Tichener described the attacks as among the most brutal in the history of the Boston police department, the victim in one instance having lost his left eye with the possibility that he may also lose the other.

The gathering that visited Wilson on Aug. 2 was led by Tichener and included Dr. Cassius A. Ward, pastor of Ebenezer Baptist Church; Dr. William Worthy, physician; Rev. H. D. Greene, pastor of Roxbury Seventh Day Advent Church, and Jesse Goode, treasurer of the South End Co-operative Bank.

CHAPTER 2

OF all the six children of Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary of England, Edward, Prince of Wales, was by far the most troublesome as a small baby. His lungs were both "large and vigorous"—as his grandfather, the late King Edward VII, used often to remark.

The birth of a son to Their Royal Highness, the Duke and Duchess of York had ceased to be a source of jubilation to the general public when the Royal Family found itself faced with a new and difficult problem.

Three weeks after the birth of the prince, Queen Victoria summoned the members of the Royal Family to a consultation to discuss the question of naming the little prince.

Naturally, there must be some attempt made, for political and national reasons, to endow the child with Christian names which might satisfy the great numbers of subjects over which Prince Edward would some day rule. Then, too, there must be taken into consideration the differing choices of the immediate Royal Family circle. Already Queen Victoria desired that the infant should bear the name Albert. Her Majesty decided this after the birth of each of her grandsons (with one or two notable exceptions).

Others of the Royal Family did not agree with the wisdom of commemorating the death of the noble Prince Consort in this patronymic manner. The prince's grandfather was also anxious to hand down to his grandson some of the popularity with which he had endowed the name of Edward; while his mother wished that George, his father's name, should be passed on to the eldest son. St. George was the Patron Saint of England. The Princess of Wales (later Queen Alexandra) also had another favorite name—Christian—her own father's name.

As so the future heir to the throne was, three days later, baptised as Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David.

The laudable addition of the three national names, representing Scotland, Ireland and Wales, satisfied everyone.

THE CHRISTENING

At the special request of Queen Victoria the christening of the young Prince was to be entirely free from the pomp and splendor which is usually demanded by tradition of Royal ceremonies.

It was to be a quiet family affair and it had been arranged that the Queen, together with the Prince and Princess of Wales and the Duke and Duchess of York, should act as godfathers and godmothers.

Now it had to be decided which of his various names should be selected for private use by his family. Already the official designation was Prince Edward Albert Edward, and later Edward only the Prince now calls himself just "Edward P." but for family purposes these two names recalled sad memories, and it was his mother who chose David as the pet name for her first born son, and by this ancient Welsh name he has always been known to the family and intimate friends and is still called today.

Some few days after the christening ceremony, the Duke and Duchess of York, with the Royal baby, moved from White Lodge to York House, staying there until August 4th, 1894, when the Duchess of York, accompanied by her mother and Lady Greville, left for St. Moritz, Switzerland, for a month's holiday of recuperation.

During his mother's absence, the Royal Prince was taken back to White Lodge under the care of his nurse.

At the end of August the Duke journeyed from Sandringham, the Royal Estate in Norfolk to York House, London, to be ready to meet the Duchess, who was expected to arrive from the continent at any

AUGUST FUR SALE

THIS LITTLE COAT WENT TO COLLEGE----

Mother says when she went to college, nobody thought of bringing a fur coat. But nowadays a snappy Raccoon is almost as important as your entrance exams.

When you buy it in Jordan's August Fur Sale, it is a real economy, for this costs but 195.00.

Buy in August . . .

because you get better furs
late winter skins are thickest . . . these will be in this Sale.

because you get better prices dull-season work on furs costs less. We had these costs made then.

and because with Jordan's Budget plan your last payment is not due until May, 1929.

THIS LITTLE COAT STAYED HOME------

And gives its wearer the best winter she's ever known! Because the newly-fashioned muskrats are distinctive in any gathering.

This one is trimmed with leopard cat, and boasts a flattering Johnnie collar, and clever new cuffs, 195.00.

Boston's youngsters find it rather fun to buy coats on Jordan's Ten-Payment Budget Plan. Just about the cost of one silk frock a month . . . and at the end you own a really pretentious coat! Daddy says it teaches economy, too.

ON INDIVIDUALITY

One hears a great deal nowadays about the desirability of preserving individuality. Coming right on the heels of all the agitation into more or less in a future grand "social order" there is to be a universal uniformity for man, there is no reason to look upon this with warm approval for as they show no desire to surrender their own particular freedom as individual. It has become a kind of catchcry among the worshippers of the great god Progress.

General John J. Carty, of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, in a recent address made a strong plea in favor of individuality. Dwelling on the question of the future of the human race, and the place of Mr. W. Trotter and the part with Darwinism, free interpretation between individuals of the species is to play in that evolution, says:

"It is the function of the engineer to provide for the contact of the utmost speed by means of electrical forms of intercommunication which will serve to put the greatest possible number of individuals in touch with all of the others that

"COPPER KING" AND CHEMISTS FIGHT FAMINE

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Dr. H. E. Barnard of the American Chemical Society says: "The chemist is important when he knows the Mellonian theory sufficiently well to control the formation of what amounts, so far as we are concerned, to gold from the fertile soil of the earth so that the produce from an acreage is sufficient to nourish those who must be its cultivators. Indeed he is already doing so."

When the word comes that chemistry will control the light of the sun and the forces of the wind we see him feeding the human race.

"Thirty men working in a factory in the case of a city school, and nowhere in the form of vegetable matter to be found, are producing the food necessary for the sustenance of a community.

Col. William Boyce Thompson, whose father was one of the last to ride "Covered Wagon" parade in Cripple Creek, Colo., and who is a graduate and trustee of Columbia University, and known as "Copper King" Thompson, sent a letter to a friend in South Dakota, which was published in the private papers. After World War he played a prominent part in Russian affairs. Farmers of the Dakotas and Minnesota were then facing a crisis. Thompson sent a letter to the New York Times. Soon was formally asked by Vincent Astor.

We have previously written about Col. Thompson's wrestling millions for relief of a country in a state of rapid fading, danger of which is now as coming to a head around Moscow. Soviet Russia has now dealt commercially with the Thompson Trust and throughout the latter is going forward a program of Mellonian theory in the work of the Thompson Institute for Plant Research at Yonkers, where the chemist sits all the way on many plants. Farmers for 40 miles away familiar with these leaders are now showing number.

Edwin Farnham Greene, treasurer of Amoskeag Mills for 21 years, resigns to head up organization of his own. He paid a dividend of $1.50 and announced that net quick assets have increased over $2,500,000 in the last six months and now amount to nearly $40 a share."

On Boston Stock Exchange the stock is quoted at $40 bid, $45 asked. In the statement came out, then rose to $75, at which figure it opened today.

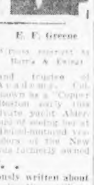
President Robert T. Parson of W. Woolworth Co. declares he is planning to establish a branch in Italy. Stabilization of the franc had, in some quarters, been looked forward to as a step toward a decline in the cost of living in that country, but it is not known what effect the new move will have on this situation. It is an open question.



H. T. Parson

President Parson disagrees with that theory. He says the neighbors of our stores will not have a good deal to gain. "We have been a part of the American industry and of German industry for a number of years and have been in the business in both countries, and I understand it is even higher than that in Germany. However, some increase in the cost of merchandise will result as Mr. Parson has at least 50 per cent of every item he imported from Germany he pays."

Barking, growling and biting dogs would not be tolerated if it were up to nine out of ten of modern business corporations, but they do. Dogs are not welcome in the offices of telephone, gas and electric companies, which have to visit residences, and in the offices of oil companies, which have to visit residences and gasoline stations. In case of robbery, the mail carriers get a privilege not enjoyed by workers for Uncle Sam's line business. They can refuse to deliver mail at a place where savage dogs roam free. Well, dog certainly does have rights if they exercise the privilege. One believes in being humane to human beings as well as to animals.

AUBURN AUTOMOBILE TO ENTER PLANE FIELD

T. H. Kinkade, recognized as one of the world's greatest airplane engine experts, has become affiliated with Lycoming Manufacturing Co. He was formerly with Wright Aeronautical Corp. Practically all the engines of the successful planes used in transatlantic flights last year were made ready by Kinkade. Auburn Automobile controls Lycoming, and employment of Kinkade indicates early entry into the airplane field.

STOLLWERCK CHOCOLATE MEETING IS ADJOURNED

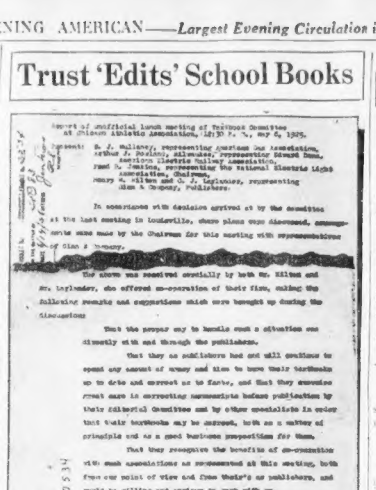
Trust 'Edits' School Books



Report of unofficial lunch meeting of Textbook Committee at Chicago Athletic Association, 12:30 P. M., May 6, 1925.

Present: S. J. Mullaney, representing American Bar Association, Charles O. Pollard, Attorney, representing Sample Case, American Electric Railway Association.
Fred R. Jenkins, representing the National Electric Light Association, Chairman, Henry A. Gilbert and C. J. Leyleander, representing Ginn & Company, Publishers.

In accordance with decision arrived at by the committee at the last meeting in Louisville, where plans were discussed, announcements were made by the Chairman for this meeting with representatives of Ginn & Company.

The above was received cordially by both Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Leyleander, who offered co-operation of their firm, making the following remarks and suggestions which were brought up during the discussion:

That the proper way to handle such a situation was directly with and through the publishers.

That they as publishers had not still continue to spend any amount of money and time to have their textbooks up to date and correct as to facts, and that they exercise great care in correcting manuscripts before publication by their editorial Committee and by other specialists in order that their textbooks may be correct, both as a matter of principle and as a good business proposition for them.

That they recognize the benefits of co-operation with such associations as represented at this meeting, both from our point of view and from their's as publishers, and would be willing and anxious to work with us.

That they as publishers would be glad to submit all manuscripts bearing on public utilities to this committee or its representatives for suggestions and changes, not however binding themselves or the author to adopt such suggestions.

That they would consider it a privilege to have such a committee to review their manuscripts, and would like to use this fact publicly in their sale and distribution.

That one of their publications "Community Life and Civic Problems" by Howard Copeland Hill, University of Chicago High School, was used by one hundred thousand students, and that they would be interested in arranging any evening soon for him to meet with the committee to discuss his book from the standpoint under discussion, and were confident our suggestions would be gratefully received by him.

That all publishers of textbooks would welcome the assistance of representative associations such as ours, but if they did not it would react against them and the sale of their publications.

Meeting adjourned at 2:30 P. M.

FRED R. JENKINS,
Chairman.

HERE is an official report of an "unofficial lunch meeting" held in Chicago by representatives of the giant utility organizations making up the power lobby, with two members of the firm of Ginn and Co. The Ginn firm is credited with publishing 12,600,000 textbooks annually. Some contain discussions of watered stock, high rates charged consumers, bribery and utility slush funds. The Federal Trade Commission investigation of the so-called power trust, in which this report is an official exhibit, shows violent

'ALL TALK' FILM BIG FEATURE AT FENWAY

Audiences at the Olympia and Fenway are sounding their appreciation of "Lights of New York," Warner Bros. first full-length all - Vitaphone production, which was written by Hugh Herbert and Murray Roth and directed by Bryan Foy.

Helene Costello

Helene Costello and Cullen Landis head the all-star cast which includes Gladys Brockwell, Mary Carr, Wheeler Oakman, Eugene Pallette, Robert Elliott, Tom Dugan, Tom McGuire, Guy D'Ennery, Walter Percival and Jere Delaney.

The thrilling and intensely human story of "Lights of New York," has to do with two young lovers who, weary of the home town, seek opportunity for fame and fortune in Manhattan.

Landing on pitiless Broadway, the girl, as a night club entertainer, the youth, like keeper of—not the innocent barber shop he had been involved into buying—but a boot-legging joint.

Then begin the complications which include the shooting of a policeman, the betrayal of the young man into the hands of the police, the strange killing of the night club proprietor, whose taking off is explained by the haggard Molly Thompson, whom he has cast off, and the reuniting of the lovers.

The effect of the human voices—is uncanny exciting.

"Lights of New York" is something new in the amusement world. It is not, in the present form, exactly by prize-wining drama, but the "all talk" feature is something not to be missed. It is an indication of what is coming in motion picture entertainment of the near future.

Burlesque

Waldron's Casino will start the new season on Saturday night with a show called "French Surprises." Vaudeville and pictures will be included in the continuous bill.

The Gayety will open its season next Saturday afternoon with "Girls From Happyland," a Mutual burlesque production by Hurtig and Seamon. Included in the cast are Irving Selig, Ben Lerner, Fred Reese, Nat Tucker, Rose Lee and Leona Reed.

Coming Events

"Excess Baggage" will start the new season at the Plymouth, opening next Monday.

"Cross My Heart," a new musical comedy, will step off at the Colonial next Monday.

George M. Cohan's farce, "Whispering Friends," will be the opening attraction at the Hollis, starting Monday, September 3.

"Golden Dawn," Arthur Hammerstein's stirring operetta, will move into the Shubert on Labor Day, September 3.

"Over the Air," a Gene Buck musical comedy, will come to the Wilbur on Labor Day, September 3.

NOVARRO STAR IN GOOD FILM AT STATE

Two widely divergent films feature the new week at Loew's State. Ramon Novarro in "Forbidden Hours" is one; the other is "The Making of a Newspaper," a shorter subject, showing the Hearst newspapers, the largest organization of its kind in the world, functions in the gathering, composition and the distribution of that marvel of modern efficiency, the daily newspaper. In a series of quick flashes the spectator is taken through the various operations. A disaster at sea, rioting in Russia, or a fire downtown—the cameras show the occurrence. And then it shows the details of the vast machinery that is a newspaper.

Ramon Novarro

The city room, the composing room, the stereotype and the rotogravure department—all the vital operations are caught by the camera—and we follow quickly each detail until at last the white bundles are seen being loaded on to fast trucks and sent to all points of the compass.

"Forbidden Hours" is a good vehicle for Novarro. The plot, like most photoplays, is not original but devotes itself to the conflict of a king falling in love with a commoner.

Split Bill

Belfast, Me., Aug. 21—Belfast and Rockland split a double header in the Coast league. Belfast took the first game, 5 to 4, and Rockland the second, 4 to 3, a batting rally led by a triple by Capt. French.

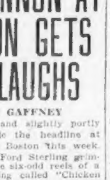
MacKINNON AT BOSTON GETS THE LAUGHS

By LEO GAFFNEY

Two persons and slightly portly gentleman divide the headline at the Keith-Albee Boston this week. On the screen Ford Sterling grimaces through the usual reels of a farcical something called "Chicken a la King." On the stage George MacKinnon, creator of "The Wisdom Box" in the Boston Daily Advertiser, talks his way through a 20-minute monologue that is likely to be heard in serious consequences before the week is out.



George MacKinnon

Sitting directly behind us yesterday was a gentleman who took it hard. He bore up bravely under Mr. MacKinnon's discussion on Newly Poets And The Frog Pond; he was only mildly hysterical during the Health Talk, but when Mr. MacKinnon's Method of Eliminating Pyorrhea was unfolded, the unfortunate gentleman himself himself into a state of uncontrollable whooping and had to be taken out for restoratives.

COMPLETELY RIDICULOUS

Besides the hazards stated above, the Wisdom Editor's act has other beguiling qualities. For instance, there is Mr. MacKinnon's mighty and altogether unsuccessful attempt to read the audience mind. This fear we venture to say, has never before been achieved on the American or any other stage. And what is more, it probably never will.

But you must not get the idea that Dr. MacKinnon is up there simply to make you laugh. No, sir! He has his serious side, or what would be doing with a talk on Feverish Ide Fashions for Men (wherein he intensely reflects that the male sex will wear coat, pants and vests for fall) or again, what would he be doing with Advice On the Care of the Gums?

MUST BE SEEN

The answer to these perplexing matters is this: If you have not read reading "The Wisdom Box." But whether you have or not the great editor is after us just like any good show—he must be seen to be appreciated.

As to the other portly gentleman, Ford Sterling, late pieces him in a Mack Sennett screen farce which would be less than nothing without him. Together with another gifted bundle, Arthur Stone, Mr. Sterling saves the day for "Chicken a la King."

GILBERT STARS IN NEW ROLE

John Gilbert's new film, "The Cossack," at Loew's Orpheum, affords this popular star an agreeable role. Thrills, struggles, grim reality and romance tend to make this one of the best films of the year.

Renee Adoree is again seen in a role which she has just opposite Gilbert in "The Big Parade."

Ernest Torrence, playing the part of a Cossack general, and father to Gilbert, is also seen to good advantage. Others prominent in the cast are Neil Neely, Dale Fuller, Jack Aiden, Yorke Sherwood, Joseph Marr, Josephine Borio and Paul Hurst.

The vaudeville honors are divided between the Perry Mansfield Players, a pretentious dancing and singing act, and Joyner and Foster, in "Running Them Ragged."

Gene Will Spend Three Days on Emerald Isle

Paris, Aug. 21 (AP)—Gene Tunney will arrive in England and Ireland before he starts his walking trip on the continent. In a wireless message received today from the steamship Mauretania, the retired heavyweight champion said after landing at Liverpool, Eng., today he would go to London by automobile then proceed to Ireland by fast channel steamer.

From Ireland the former champion will return to London for what he hopes to be "quiet visits" with friends there.

New York, Aug. 21—Decision to hold the annual Army golf tournament at the Second Corps Area on the links of the Nassau Country Club at Glen Cove, Long Island, on September 6 and 7, was announced by Maj-Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commanding general at Governors Island.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of the United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Hoover, Knowing Facts, Is for HIGH Dam at Boulder

Herbert Hoover's Los Angeles statement on the Boulder canyon project has the effect of recording the Republican party in favor of this enterprise.

His summary is definite and complete; it goes to the heart of the subject; he wants to see a HIGH dam in the Colorado River, and he adds his plea to that of millions of his fellow Californians that the project be authorized by the PRESENT CONGRESS at its next session.

He is for the project because he understands it, as this sentence so clearly establishes:

"There is, perhaps, but one limitation which looms upon the horizon of the future of Los Angeles and southern California, and that is an adequate water supply that can, and must, be assured from the Colorado River in ample time to meet your expanding needs."

Those who circulate the fiction that southern California has plenty of water, some of them leaders in the Republican party, should consult Mr. Hoover's declaration on that matter. He KNOWS.

What is to be done about this problem? Mr. Hoover, engineer, economist, business man, tells:

"We, indeed, want the greatest of reservoirs in the Boulder canyon, with the HIGHEST OF DAMS THAT OUR ENGINEERS WILL RECOMMEND, and I am hopeful that the project will receive favorable action by the present Congress."

There are some misguided persons who insist that a low dam for flood control is the thing. They should consult Mr. Hoover. He knows that a low dam will not give southern California cities the water they need, and his memorable address bases his argument for the project on that need.

It must be pleasing to Californians generally, and to the presidential candidate in particular, that Senator Hiram Johnson so promptly and cordially recognized the importance of the Los Angeles speech. He reflects the sentiment of the people he so ably represents in these words:

"I am immensely gratified at Mr. Hoover's indorsement of our Boulder Dam project.

"I am particularly delighted that he expresses the hope that is ours that the project will receive favorable action from the present Congress."

Friday's declaration gives new strength to the determination of the Southwest to consummate this great undertaking.

Marrying 'For Keeps'

Still the Rule in Massachusetts Even If Divorce IS More Common

One of the thoughts suggested by marriage and divorce statistics recently sent out from Washington is that the young couple who enter the state of matrimony in Boston, or Worcester, or Lynn, are more likely to "stay" married than Mr. and Mrs. Younglove, of the Island of Nantucket.

Why this should be so the Census Bureau, concerned only with figures, will not tell. Can anyone shed light upon the subject? WHY is marriage in the "rural districts" more hazardous, speaking generally, than matrimony in the city?

In the table which follows, the name of the county is given first, population next, number of marriages third and number of divorces last. The figures are for the year 1927:

	Pop.	Mar.	Div.
Barnstable	29,782	255	36
Berkshire	121,255	707	115
Bristol	383,795	2,931	277
Duke's	4,372	34	4
Essex	496,832	3,351	428
Franklin	49,598	322	30
Hampden	327,088	2,014	269
Hampshire	75,122	460	28
Middlesex	860,414	6,512	729
Nantucket	3,152	27	7
Norfolk	262,065	1,980	179
Plymouth	164,257	1,906	127
Suffolk	876,286	7,621	885
Worcester	489,697	3,089	345

Nantucket, with the largest percentage of divorces—one divorce to four marriages—is the smallest county of the Commonwealth. Essex, where Darby and Joan are more likely to put up with one another's ways until the golden wedding, ranks third in population.

In the State as a whole the number of marriages dropped last year in comparison with the year before by 176.

Divorces, on the other hand, showed an increase of 152, from 3307 to 3459.

If this were all of the story the preachers might shake their heads in puzzled anxiety, but to get the WHOLE truth we must turn back to 1916, in which year the Census Bureau began the compilation of these statistics.

Twelve years ago, then, the number of marriages in Massachusetts was 34,386; the number of divorces 2336.

In other words, the percentage of Bay State marriages which went upon the rocks of the Divorce Court in the year which witnessed the re-election of Wilson because he "kept us out of war," was 6.8.

Eleven years and we see this percentage risen to 11.5.

We may not be in the "divorce belt," but we have traveled a long way from our former regard of marriage as binding "until death do us part."

All shocking enough to the sober-minded American past middle age, MOST deplorable, perhaps, because village and hamlet are revealed as even more "companionate" than the city.

ood Enough for Him! -:- By T. E. Powers

EVERYBODY SHOULD TAKE VACATION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

EVERYBODY ought to have a vacation.

Keeping everlastingly at is brings success. It also brings stagnation.

It would be better to lay off once in a while as you go along than to lay off permanently pretty soon.

The most efficient people who can hit the line the hardest are those that can let go the most completely.

The art of being at your best most of the time is also the art of relaxing some of the time.

Vacation ought to be arranged if possible so that our activities will be entirely different from the usual ones. President Coolidge sets a good example of this. He goes back to the primitive art of fishing and country life, the furthest possible removal from his highly complicated job as President.

If you are a city worker get some old clothes and go to the country. Lie on the ground, bask in the sun, bathe in the water and give nature a chance.

No matter how much we are highly developed souls we are basically bodies. We may be thinking animals, but we are animals. We are not disembodied spirits.

The thing from which we need most a vacation is worry or care.

The most highly productive land needs an occasional spell of lying fallow. The colt needs to run out in the pasture and kick his heels once in awhile. All animal creation needs periods of repose.

The ability to do nothing effectively and perfectly is not a sign of weakness, but an indication of strength.

Good sleepers are the healthy people. It is abnormal and diseased and defective people that have insomnia.

It was said of Napoleon that he could lie down any time of the day or night and go to sleep immediately.

All of us are the better off who take refuge once in awhile in the normal and healthy animalities. Charles Spurgeon said that excessive spirituality is akin to sensuality.

So we don't want to be excessively good all the time. Not that our recess should be sinful, but occasionally we should be non-moral, not immoral. We shouldn't string ourselves up to the highest pitch all the time.

When Esop was found playing with boys he was asked why he, a grown man, did so. He replied by saying that a bow shot better if occasionally it were unstrung.

Grown people as well as youths should learn how to play.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Superior beings above us, who enjoy perfect happiness are more steadily determined in their choice of good than we, and yet they are not less happy or less free than we. —Locke.

There are three things in speech that ought to be considered before some things are spoken—the manner, the place and the time. —Southey.

There is not much difficulty in confining the mind to contemplate that we have great desire to know. —Watts.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I WONDER if this thing will get you as it got me?

It was in a dingy office down in the commission district. You know the kind of an office, dark little coop on a level with the sidewalk. Fly blown windows—dust and straw blowing. Dirty brown varnish, grimey old files, battered windows piled high with yellowing papers, a tarn calender—a spittoon. And, in the midst of the dinginess—sunk in its gray tide—a little faded man, with filmy eyes from which all ambition or curiosity had faded, long since.

A little old failure of a man whose age lay upon him without pride or dignity. A hopeless soul within a hopeless house—so I thought. Yet even as I turned away, my eye caught something which made me pause.

Above some cluttered shelves—half hidden in the shadows of the ceiling—there hung a great bird. An eagle—stuffed. The feathers were moth eaten and one glass eye was gone. But still the dead wings opened to majestic spread—the great neck jutted forward with the fighter's lunge—the talons clutched with strength which once tore lambs apart.

That huge and kingly bird in that small fly-blown room! That great free thing, hung stuffed within a hole were freedom never moved!

The little man saw my amazement. Timidly his glance wavered up with mine, toward the dead bird, and something stirred beneath his face, like a small spark in ashes long since cold.

"I shot that bird," he said at last, as though he spoke to himself.

I went out wondering. Sometime, before age turned his eyes to dusty glass, and left him stuffed within that stingy room, THAT MAN HAD HUNTED EAGLES.

Somewhere within him leaped a lust for hills—for lonely trails—and dangerous mountain tops!

And somewhere still, there stayed the memory of the wind—the scent of pines—the joy of a free camp beneath the stars.

And yet—I thought he was a plain, gray man.

I wonder what we'd find if we could look within the souls of those we think so old, so hopeless and so dull. Perhaps—an eagle!

New York Day by Day

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Three beautiful New York girls of prominent families have been disabled for nearly a year as the result of their efforts to be thin. Subsisting on a diet of acid fruits, all were victims of prolonged attacks of inflammatory rheumatism.

The craze to keep thin exists chiefly among girls between 17 and 24 years of age. Doctors say at no period in their lives are they in such need of health-giving food, and as a result a large percentage drift into wasting maladies.

Private sanitariums are said to be filled with young girls suffering from malnutrition as a result of enforcing a rigid diet. A noted psychologist announces the only object of this starvation is the hope of being attractive and catching a husband.

He further avers the majority, aside from defeating their own purposes, invite chronic invalidism. It is his contention 50 per cent of men are actually repulsed by unnatural thinness. He points to the fact that in the crop of June brides more than two-thirds of the New York quota were plump.

The craze to reduce has fallen heaviest on restaurants. The luncheon for the average girl today consists of a few sprigs of lettuce or a nibble or so of toast. The evening meal is also ordered just as sparingly. This is largely responsible for inflation of cafe prices.

As an indication of the avoidance of sweets, the consumption of sugar fell off 200,000 tons in a year. And scarcely any modern girl will think of eating potatoes. There is one record of a show girl torturing herself so with libations of raw vinegar that she went into a quick decline.

Astute physicians seem agreed a careful diet has value, but a constant and enforced hunger is more destructive even than over-eating. Another observation has been noted. There have been girls who starved themselves and grow so weak they resort to alcoholic stimulants, and in some cases drugs.

A PARK Avenue lady gave an outdoor circus for a group of anaemic and spindly legged children from the tenements. Among entertainers were three clowns, long out of work, and two Italians with performing monkeys. At the conclusion of the affair she offered each a large sum and all refused the money. "We are not that poor," said the spokesman stiffly.

DESPITE its sangfroid, Broadway has few cosmopolites. The globe trotting worldlings are found in the exclusive clubs a few blocks eastward. There are innumerable Broadway sophisticates who have never been abroad or as far west as Chicago. They are brought up to believe Broadway is the high spot of the world and after they gravitated there had no desire to see what was beyond. To them, any other city is only camping out. They cannot believe Louisville, Ky., ladies are just as smartly dressed or that the wise cracks in front of a Des Moines barber shop are just as hot as those pulled in front of the Lyric. Indeed Broadway's most famous wise-cracker, Joe Frisco, is from Des Moines. The Broadway-wise are the folk who really give the street its provincialism. And many of the lookers-on pains in the neck.

IT is a custom for important business men these days to have their business so geared they can leave it flat for six months without making any change in its efficiency. That seems a tremendous achievement to writers. If they want anything done they must do it themselves. And even then it rarely amounts to shucks.

NEW YORK has many widows—the sort you imagine had a little left over after selling the boarding house—who came to town expecting some adventure out of the ordinary. They are seen dining alone night after night in cheaper restaurants, apparently lonely and thoroughly disillusioned.

"HOW would you like," circuits rites a haberdashery, "to wear scarves from the same silk as those made for John Barrymore?"

It would be no especial kick in the pants, so long as you ask.

If It Were Not for the Billboard, Yes

The statement that commissioners sitting in the State House can legalize the erection of big billboards in any city in Massachusetts—even over the protest of local authorities—will occasion surprise.

When Haverhill's City Council was advised not long ago of the desire of Boston billboard men to erect a giant board in one of the streets of the Essex County city, Mayor Fred McGregor gave expression to sentiments which are by no means uncommon.

"If I could help it," Mr. McGregor said, "I would not vote to give a permit for ANY billboard. I wish we could do away with every billboard in this city."

But that cannot be, apparently, for as the Gazette reporter explains:

"When applications for the erection of these signs are received by the State Department of Public Works the designated city is notified and its authorities requested to inform the State Board whether there is objection. THE CITY COUNCIL HAS NOTHING TO DO WITH GRANTING THE LICENSE AND IT HAS BEEN THE EXPERIENCE OF THE MUNICIPAL GOVERNING BODY, NOT ONLY THIS YEAR BUT IN PREVIOUS YEARS, THAT BUT LITTLE NOTICE IS TAKEN OF PROTESTS."

The trouble with the campaign against the billboard, in New England at least, is that it has yet to become a REAL campaign. Civic organizations listen to speeches about the nuisance, draft ringing resolutions, send the resolutions to the public authorities and turn to the next interesting subject.

They order things differently across the line in Quebec, where Provincial authorities have entered upon a campaign of merciless suppression. Every billboard which mars the Quebec scenery or otherwise constitutes a nuisance in the eyes of the tourist, the Minister of Roads declares, may be considered to be on its way to the bonfire.

In Kansas, not much of a "tourist" State, the Legislature has decreed that no sign of any description shall be permitted along the highways except authorized road markers.

Meanwhile New England, bidding all America to its lovely hills, impressive mountains, miles of beautiful sea coast and thousands of lakes, cusses the billboard man and his works and does nothing else.

WHEN wars are done and Peace, the white-winged, broods and smiles upon Earth's happy multitudes, when rusted armaments where ivy grows, serve but to point the depths from which man rose, when wars are done and all their madness passed, then man shall rise to manhood's heights at last, where roar of guns and shriek of shells has ceased and glory lies in being man not beast.

When brotherhood means not one name, one race, but girds all countries in its wide embrace, and every thread of life, or gold or gray is seen, a part of God's great tapestry then, with war past, will come full heritage for man; no more will history's changing page be red with life-blood or be wet with tears; no more shall women's sobs ring down the years!

Hoover, Knowing Facts, Is for HIGH Dam at Boulder

Herbert Hoover's Los Angeles statement on the Boulder canyon project has the effect of recording the Republican party in favor of this enterprise.

His summary is definite and complete; it goes to the heart of the subject; he wants to see a HIGH dam in the Colorado River, and he adds his plea to that of millions of his fellow Californians that the project be authorized by the PRESENT CONGRESS at its next session.

He is for the project because he understands it, as this sentence so clearly establishes:

"There is, perhaps, but one limitation which looms upon the horizon of the future of Los Angeles and southern California, and that is an adequate water supply that can, and must, be assured from the Colorado River in ample time to meet your expanding needs."

Those who circulate the fiction that southern California has plenty of water, some of them leaders in the Republican party, should consult Mr. Hoover's declaration on that matter. He KNOWS.

What is to be done about this problem? Mr. Hoover, engineer, economist, business man, tells:

"We, indeed, want the greatest of reservoirs in the Boulder canyon, with the HIGHEST OF DAMS THAT OUR ENGINEERS WILL RECOMMEND, and I am hopeful that the project will receive favorable action by the present Congress."

There are some misguided persons who insist that a low dam for flood control is the thing. They should consult Mr. Hoover. He knows that a low dam will not give southern California cities the water they need, and his memorable address bases his argument for the project on that need.

It must be pleasing to Californians generally, and to the presidential candidate in particular, that Senator Hiram Johnson so promptly and cordially recognized the importance of the Los Angeles speech. He reflects the sentiment of the people he so ably represents in these words:

"I am immensely gratified at Mr. Hoover's indorsement of our Boulder Dam project.

"I am particularly delighted that he expresses the hope that is ours that the project will receive favorable action from the present Congress."

Friday's declaration gives new strength to the determination of the Southwest to consummate this great undertaking.

Marrying 'For Keeps'

Still the Rule in Massachusetts Even If Divorce IS More Common

One of the thoughts suggested by marriage and divorce statistics recently sent out from Washington is that the young couple who enter the state of matrimony in Boston, or Worcester, or Lynn, are more likely to "stay" married than Mr. and Mrs. Younglove, of the Island of Nantucket.

Why this should be so the Census Bureau, concerned only with figures, will not tell. Can anyone shed light upon the subject? WHY is marriage in the "rural districts" more hazardous, speaking generally, than matrimony in the city?

In the table which follows, the name of the county is given first, population next, number of marriages third and number of divorces last. The figures are for the year 1927:

	Pop.	Mar.	Div.
Barnstable	29,782	255	36
Berkshire	121,255	707	115
Bristol	383,795	2,931	277
Duke's	4,372	34	4
Essex	496,832	3,351	428
Franklin	49,598	322	30
Hampden	327,088	2,014	269
Hampshire	75,122	460	28
Middlesex	860,414	6,512	729
Nantucket	3,152	27	7
Norfolk	262,065	1,980	179
Plymouth	164,257	1,906	127
Suffolk	876,286	7,621	885
Worcester	489,697	3,089	345

Nantucket, with the largest percentage of divorces—one divorce to four marriages—is the smallest county of the Commonwealth. Essex, where Darby and Joan are more likely to put up with one another's ways until the golden wedding, ranks third in population.

In the State as a whole the number of marriages dropped last year in comparison with the year before by 176.

Divorces, on the other hand, showed an increase of 152, from 3307 to 3459.

If this were all of the story the preachers might shake their heads in puzzled anxiety, but to get the WHOLE truth we must turn back to 1916, in which year the Census Bureau began the compilation of these statistics.

Twelve years ago, then, the number of marriages in Massachusetts was 34,386; the number of divorces 2336.

In other words, the percentage of Bay State marriages which went upon the rocks of the Divorce Court in the year which witnessed the re-election of Wilson because he "kept us out of war," was 6.8.

Eleven years and we see this percentage risen to 11.5.

We may not be in the "divorce belt," but we have traveled a long way from our former regard of marriage as binding "until death do us part."

All shocking enough to the sober-minded American past middle age, MOST deplorable, perhaps, because village and hamlet are revealed as even more "companionate" than the city.

EVERYBODY SHOULD TAKE VACATION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

EVERYBODY ought to have a vacation.

Keeping everlastingly at is brings success. It also brings stagnation.

It would be better to lay off once in a while as you go along than to lay off permanently pretty soon.

The most efficient people who can hit the line the hardest are those that can let go the most completely.

The art of being at your best most of the time is also the art of relaxing some of the time.

Vacation ought to be arranged if possible so that our activities will be entirely different from the usual ones. President Coolidge sets a good example of this. He goes back to the primitive art of fishing and country life, the furthest possible removal from his highly complicated job as President.

If you are a city worker get some old clothes and go to the country. Lie on the ground, bask in the sun, bathe in the water and give nature a chance.

No matter how much we are highly developed souls we are basically bodies. We may be thinking animals, but we are animals. We are not disembodied spirits.

The thing from which we need most a vacation is worry or care.

The most highly productive land needs an occasional spell of lying fallow. The colt needs to run out in the pasture and kick his heels once in awhile. All animal creation needs periods of repose.

The ability to do nothing effectively and perfectly is not a sign of weakness, but an indication of strength.

Good sleepers are the healthy people. It is abnormal and diseased and defective people that have insomnia.

It was said of Napoleon that he could lie down any time of the day or night and go to sleep immediately.

All of us are the better off who take refuge once in awhile in the normal and healthy animalities. Charles Spurgeon said that excessive spirituality is akin to sensuality.

So we don't want to be excessively good all the time. Not that our recess should be sinful, but occasionally we should be non-moral, not immoral. We shouldn't string ourselves up to the highest pitch all the time.

When Esop was found playing with boys he was asked why he, a grown man, did so. He replied by saying that a bow shot better if occasionally it were unstrung.

Grown people as well as youths should learn how to play.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Superior beings above us, who enjoy perfect happiness are more steadily determined in their choice of good than we, and yet they are not less happy or less free than we. —Locke.

There is not much difficulty in confining the mind to contemplate that we have great desire to know. —Watts.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I WONDER if this thing will get you as it got me?

It was in a dingy office down in the commission district. You know the kind of an office, dark little coop on a level with the sidewalk. Fly blown windows—dust and straw blowing. Dirty brown varnish, grimey old files, battered windows piled high with yellowing papers, a tarn calender—a spittoon. And, in the midst of the dinginess—sunk in its gray tide—a little faded man, with filmy eyes from which all ambition or curiosity had faded, long since.

A little old failure of a man whose age lay upon him without pride or dignity. A hopeless soul within a hopeless house—so I thought. Yet even as I turned away, my eye caught something which made me pause.

Above some cluttered shelves—half hidden in the shadows of the ceiling—there hung a great bird. An eagle—stuffed. The feathers were moth eaten and one glass eye was gone. But still the dead wings opened to majestic spread—the great neck jutted forward with the fighter's lunge—the talons clutched with strength which once tore lambs apart.

That huge and kingly bird in that small fly-blown room! That great free thing, hung stuffed within a hole were freedom never moved!

The little man saw my amazement. Timidly his glance wavered up with mine, toward the dead bird, and something stirred beneath his face, like a small spark in ashes long since cold.

"I shot that bird," he said at last, as though he spoke to himself.

I went out wondering. Sometime, before age turned his eyes to dusty glass, and left him stuffed within that stingy room, THAT MAN HAD HUNTED EAGLES.

Somewhere within him leaped a lust for hills—for lonely trails—and dangerous mountain tops!

And somewhere still, there stayed the memory of the wind—the scent of pines—the joy of a free camp beneath the stars.

And yet—I thought he was a plain, gray man.

I wonder what we'd find if we could look within the souls of those we think so old, so hopeless and so dull. Perhaps—an eagle!
